Corpse Reviver No. 2

Equal parts gin, Cocchi, orange liqueur and lemon; absinthe-misted coupe.

MAKES 1 DRINK · ABV ~14% · STD DRINKS 1.2
GLASS COUPE OR MARTINI GLASS · ICE NONE, SERVED UP
GARNISH LEMON TWIST, OPTIONAL

BEFORE YOU START

- Chill the coupe.
- Load the atomiser with absinthe. No atomiser? Swirl a few drops in the cold glass and tip out the excess.

SPEC

3/4 oz	22.5 ml	Gin
3/4 oz	22.5 ml	Cocchi Americano or Lillet Blanc
3/4 oz	22.5 ml	Curaçao or other orange liqueur
3/4 oz	22.5 ml	Lemon juice fresh
Rinse		Absinthe sprayed

METHOD

1. Add everything except the absinthe to the shaker tin.
2. Fill with ice and shake hard.
   ✓ Tin frosted over
3. Mist the chilled coupe with absinthe, so it scents the drink without taking over.
4. Double strain into the glass through the Hawthorne and a fine strainer.
5. Fold the twist over the surface to spray its oils, then drop it in.

NOTES

Substitutions

- Craddock's original called for Kina Lillet, which is no longer made. It carried more quinine bite, so Cocchi Americano is the closer match.
- With Lillet Blanc or another white vermouth, pick one with noticeable bitterness, or add a dash of orange bitters to make up for it.

My notes

- The book gives 20 ml (2/3 oz) of each. Scaled to 3/4 oz to land on a standard jigger line; keep all four equal and the drink is unchanged.
